

Fly Kids for Nate Gift Introduction

Flight training is very rewarding! It also takes considerable time and financial commitment. Typically a private pilot certificate will cost at least $6000 to as much as $10,000 to achieve. Fly Kids for Nate gift is not intended to cover the total cost to achieve a private pilot certificate.

The Nate Abel Flying Club is not a flight school, we simply make our aircraft available at as low an hourly rate as possible to our members. As we are not a school, our members and gift recipients arrange their own training with independent certified flight instructors who are vetted by the club to meet our insurance requirements.

If you are a parent of a student pilot you will also need to be prepared to spend a lot of time supporting your young aviator, such as possibly taking them to and from the airport for day and night flights, attending meetings, as well as making sure they complete their lesson requirements. This is not an easy or hands off endeavor, it's a partnership with your young aviator.

Here are some habits of successful students

- They show up early for a lesson prepared
- They fly often
- They set realistic goals and achieve them
- They study independently and often
- They secure a mentor
- They ask for help from our pilots and club officers
- They bounce back if a lesson does not go well
